COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Explore the wonder and diversity of the park's wildflowers with former Rocky Mountain National Park interpretive naturalist Leanne Benton. The park's vertical topography allows for a variety of habitats, and this class will search out lush wildflower displays from montane meadows to high alpine ridges. Participants will get up-close with the mountain flora to discover their adaptations for survival and the interesting stories behind their beautiful faces. Identification techniques will be honed, and participants will gain confidence using a simple flower key. Day 1 will focus on montane and subalpine wildflowers. Day 2 will focus on alpine wildflowers.

COURSE LEVEL: II

The class will include a walk of more than a mile on rolling terrain.

Note: Portions of this class will be spent at elevations exceeding 11,000 ft.

BRIEF INSTRUCTOR BIOGRAPHY (additional information available at www.RMConservancy.org):

Leanne is a former ranger-naturalist in Rocky Mountain National Park and has led wildflower walks in the park for 25 years. She has studied and photographed the park's wildflowers for more than 30 years. Leanne has a wealth of wildflower knowledge that she shares with program participants.

EXPECTATIONS: Professional conduct will be expected from participants at all times. Individual ideas will be respected. Except during course breaks, cellular phones, pagers, and personal entertainment devices are strictly prohibited in the classroom and during field sessions.

CAR-POOLING: Rocky Mountain Conservancy - Field Institute courses utilize car-pooling to limit vehicles traveling into the park. Car-pooling makes it easier to keep the group together, reduces transit time, and allows courses greater access because fewer parking spaces are required at destinations. In addition, it provides an opportunity for participants to discuss course material in small groups during transit. Typically, a few participants from each course volunteer the use of their vehicles for car-pooling to course locations.
